Introduction

Background information.<sup>1</sup>

The birth of Unitarianism in Ireland can be traced back to the arrival of English Puritans on Irish soil, and a substantial number of Scottish Presbyterian Planters in Ulster, during the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries. During the early 18th century opposing views of the doctrine of the Trinity lead to tensions between Presbyterian communities. In 1702, Thomas Emlyn, the minister of the Wood Street community was imprisoned for his opinions which were adjudged to be heretical. During the 1720s, in an effort to enforce orthodoxy, Presbyterian communities were required to subscribe to the 'Westminster Confession of Faith'. When John Abernethy and sixteen other ministers refused to do so they were expelled from the Synod of Ulster thus leading to the emergence of the 'Non-Subscribing Presbyterian Church.' Abernethy later became minister at Wood Street.

Continued efforts during the mid-1800s to enforce conformity and other factors resulted in Unitarianism being centred in Dublin. Prince's Street community in Cork city was the only congregation outside of Dublin, not to be restored to mainstream evangelical Presbyterianism. The two Dublin congregations were based in Strand Street and Eustace Street. Amalgamations appear frequently in the history of Irish Unitarianism and both Dublin congregations merged in 1866.

The Strand Street congregation erected a new Meeting House in the 1760s and their numbers were strengthened shortly afterwards when the community at Wood Street merged with them. The Cook Street congregation followed suit shortly afterwards, moving to Strand Street in 1787. In 1857 the Strand Street congregation purchased a site on the west side of St. Stephen's Green using money bequeathed to them by Thomas Wilson. In 1863 the congregation opened their new church at 112 St. Stephen's Green. This Gothic Revival building, designed by architects Lanyon, Lynn and Lanyon of Belfast, continues to be used by the Unitarian community today.

The Eustace Street congregation was originally based in New Row. In the late 1720s they took a lease for a new site on Eustace Street where they too built a new Meeting House. In July 1866, following a resolution of the Committee of Eustace Street congregation, it was resolved that the Eustace Street and Stephen's Green Congregations should amalgamate. The newly constructed building on St. Stephen's Green became home to both congregations.

The congregations benefited from bequests which were managed by Trust Funds (discussed below). This allowed them to operate a number of charitable institutions and schools including the Damer and Singleton Schools. Records of these trusts and schools are included in the collection. Following the closure of the Damer School at St. Stephen's Green the premises was leased as a theatre, known as the Damer Hall. From 1910 until 1962 the congregation was ministered to by Rev. E. Savell Hicks. The majority of the draft sermons and lectures contained in this collection come from the pen of this renowned preacher and thinker.

Provenance and Archival History.

The Dublin Unitarian Church Collection was donated to the Royal Irish Academy by the Dublin Unitarian Church in two separate deposits. The first deposit was made in 2006, with the second occurring in 2008. As a result, the two deposits were processed and catalogued by two archivists working in 2007 and 2010 respectively. While there are certain differences between the types of material contained in each deposit they, nevertheless, both contain documents arising from the same church activities and dating from the same period. It has been decided, therefore, to amalgamate both catalogues into this single volume, while at the same time retaining the separate identity of each. The processing of the collection was part-funded by Heritage Council grants received in 2007 and 2009 and from funding provided by the Dublin Unitarian Church in 2010.

The first deposit is comprised of documents relating to the Unitarian community of Dublin and some of its predecessor congregations, located over time at premises in Wood Street, Cook Street, Eustace Street, Strand Street, and St. Stephen's Green. Consisting of over 1700 documents, the collection includes committee minute books, cash books, collection books, subscription lists, petty cash books and other financial material, school registers and account books, correspondence, reports, sermons and lectures. These documents were created and maintained by congregation members, acting in their various official capacities e.g. Management Committee secretaries, Trustees, School Board members etc. Prior to its donation to the Royal Irish Academy the material had been box-listed by Stephen Ffeary-Smyrl, researcher in 2001. Following its acquisition by the Academy the collection was processed and catalogued by archivist, Roisin Berry, in 2007. Her catalogue corresponds exactly to the first half of this volume, entitled 'Catalogue to the First Deposit' and her introduction to that catalogue has also been incorporated into this introduction.

The second deposit consists overwhelmingly of papers relating to the various Trust Funds or Properties operated by the Unitarian congregation. These papers were originally held by Hone and Falkiner, solicitors who managed the trusts on behalf of the congregation. They typically consist of title deeds, wills, deeds of conveyance, legal opinions, building and valuation reports, correspondence with tenants of properties and dealings with the Land Commission. The trusts operated principally during the later 19th and early 20th centuries but the collection also contains some original documents from the 18th century as well as copies of deeds from that period. Hone and Falkiner clearly filed documents together by Trust Fund, rolling the papers of each trust into a number of bundles. They did not, however, create a consistent order, chronological or otherwise, within each bundle or between bundles. It appears likely (based upon physical observation alone) that the bundles had not been opened or the order disturbed since their return to the congregation. This material has been catalogued by Martin Fagan, archivist in 2010 and has been included in the second half of this volume, entitled 'Catalogue to the Second Deposit'.

Scope and Content.

First Deposit- by Roisin Berry, archivist.

The documents [of the first deposit] provide a glimpse of the daily business of the different congregations, addressing a variety of different subjects including the management and administration of the charity schools, apprenticeships of pupils, appointments of staff and committee members, property dealings, meetings of the Synod of Munster, congregational accounts and funds, maintenance of church and school premises, erection of memorial tablets, admissions to the widows' alms house, union of congregations, subscriptions and donations, and the establishment of a congregational library. Of particular interest, however, are the minute books, which provide a rich source of information on the congregations and their members between the eighteenth and twentieth centuries.

Minute books, account books and school registers provide valuable data on the area of education and the establishment of charity schools by the Unitarian community in Dublin during this period. The minute books in particular address a range of different areas of interest, such as accommodation, apprenticeships, staff appointments, discipline, diet and nutrition, building repairs, outbreak of disease, and pupil numbers. The provision of an education and the opportunity to enter into service or to undertake an apprenticeship for children was encouraged by the formation of these educational institutions. Disciplining pupils from the charity schools appears to be a recurring theme in the documents, and is reflected in the proceedings of a meeting held by the Eustace Street congregation on 8 November 1742, stating the order that 'John Pace, John Rivett & Thos Wise, who have misbehaved of late, do not receive their cloaths...' (RIA/DUC/EUS/1). An entry in the minutes of the Eustace Street congregation over one hundred years later, dating to 31 July 1853, notes 'that Corporal punishment shall be strictly prohibited' in the male schools (RIA/DUC/EUS/7).

Finding suitable accommodation for the congregations and their schools seems to have been an on-going challenge, with a reference in the minutes of Strand Street's Managing Committee dated 5 August 1852 to a report 'that filthy water and other refuse are constantly flung from neighbouring windows upon the schoolhouse roof' (RIA/DUC/STR/10A). The Singleton Female School attached to St. Stephen's Green Unitarian Church and located in Summer Hill also faced problems with their neighbours, noting in their 1899 minutes 'the disadvantage of being situated in a very undesirable locality with tenement houses on either side which are at times occupied by a very low class of people' (RIA/DUC/STE/8).

The maintenance and repair of school and church buildings is also recorded in the minutes, with a list of the requirements for new school premises in the proceedings of a meeting held by the Eustace Street congregation dated 6 February 1899, noting 'accommodation for at least 18 girls to be provided; an extra room for isolating a case of illness; a laundry & conveniences for drying clothes; a large bedroom for the matron' (RIA/DUC/EUS/3).

An entry in a minute book for Strand Street Unitarian Church dated 17 November 1850 reveals the influence of other religious denominations on the community at the time, noting 'The Catholic priest commands the parents to remove their child from a Protestant school...many of the elder girls have been taken away during the past year' (RIA/DUC/STR/5).

Other school records of significance include account books with information on the domestic expenditure of the school facilities, providing an insight also into the weekly diet of the pupils and staff. Admission registers also provide valuable information about each pupil including their name, age when admitted, parent's name, length of time in school and destination after their education is complete.

New appointments to the church community are also recorded in the minute books, with a particular reference in the minutes for Eustace Street congregation, dated 1 May 1842, to the salary and allowances of the newly appointed sexton and sextoness as 'Ten pounds per annum, an allowance of Coals and Candles, with apartments in the rere of the building lately occupied as the Boys School' (RIA/DUC/EUS/7). An amusing entry in one particular volume, dated 10 October 1956, contains instructions for cleaning staff from [Rev. E. Savell Hicks of St. Stephen's Green Unitarian Church], and states 'Please sweep ceiling of Ladies' Cloakroom & lavatory-cobwebs-including lamp shade in lavatory where the cobwebs look like a lace frill!!!!' (RIA/DUC/STE/28).

The role of women in the management of church affairs is reflected in an entry in the minutes of St. Stephen's Green's Finance Committee dated 30 June 1940 which reads 'for the first time in the history of our Church, a lady, Mrs. Saville, attended as a member of the Finance Committee, acted as Chairman of the meeting, and signed cheques in payment of accounts' (RIA/DUC/STE/17). A letter from Most Reverend John Charles McQuaid, Archbishop of Dublin, to Rev. E. Savell Hicks of St. Stephen's Green Church, also reveals the level of contact between the different religious denominations in Dublin at the time. The document, dated 16 February 1964, refers to an invitation to the ordination ceremony of Rev. Kenneth Wright. It states 'May I ask you to thank for me your Managing Committee and to request them to understand that it is not a ceremony at which I may assist' (RIA/DUC/STE/21A).

The property dealings of the Unitarian community in Dublin are also documented in the collection, with relevant documents including minute books, bound lists of deeds, leases and papers, and cash books. Documents refer to the leasing of properties owned by the Unitarians, with frequent references to the issue of tenants in arrears. One entry in the minutes of the Managing Committee of Strand Street dated 20 April 1859 notes 'the occupiers of rooms in Swan Alley (a wretched class of tenants) refused to pay rent and have given considerable trouble' (RIA/DUC/STR/10A).

The documentation contained in the collection also reveals the community's dedicated campaign to provide assistance to the poorest members of society, through their fund raising and committee work. The establishment of a widows' alms house on Cork Street, Dublin, by the congregation at Eustace Street bears testament to this. The development of this facility to accommodate widows without adequate means was achieved through a generous donation from Mr. Ralph Cards. In his will dated 14 April 1744, Cards states 'I Bequeath the three poor houses Erected by my said Father in Cork street...to the officers of the said Meeting house in Eustace street' (RIA/DUC/EUS/2). An entry in the 1810 minutes lists the rules and regulations of the house noting anyone admitted should 'keep themselves clean & decent & regularly attend Divine Service in the Lord's Day' (RIA/DUC/EUS/4). In addition, there are references in the records of St. Stephen's Green Church to the development of the Huxley Housing Scheme, a dedicated accommodation plan for widows, in the early twentieth century.

The unions of different Unitarian congregations in Dublin at various stages throughout the history of the church can most likely be attributed to the community's declining numbers and inadequate accommodation. These amalgamations are well documented, with a reference in minutes of the Managing Committee of Eustace Street Unitarian congregation, dating 31 July 1866, 'That this congregation is ready to carry out the proposed union with the Stephen's Green congregation...And to follow as nearly as possible the [model] adopted on the occasion of the union of the Cook St. and Strand St. Congregations' (RIA/DUC/EUS/12).

The financial affairs of congregations can be gleaned from a series of cash books contained in the collection. The volumes record all of the debits and credits relating to the various funds and accounts connected to the Unitarian community. These include the Charity School Fund, Contingency Account, Plunkett Widows Fund, Psalmody Account, Female School Marriage Portion Fund, Widows' Alms House Account, and St. Stephen's Green Church Head Rent Fund. The collection also contains a series of handwritten drafts of sermons and lectures, mostly in the hand of Rev. E. Savell Hicks of St. Stephen's Green Church, and addressing a wide range of different subjects, including the spirit of Christianity, post offices, National Gallery, Oliver Cromwell, cult of the Virgin Mary, Oliver Twist, function of a church, Ruskin, secularisation of politics, and Unitarianism as a world movement.

The origins of the Irish Unitarian Christian Society are recorded in three volumes contained in the collection, which include the proceedings at meetings of the Society and a cash book. An entry in a minute book, dated 17 March 1830, refers to the formation of a committee in Dublin consisting of seventeen members, noting 'That this Meeting, conscientiously believing Unitarianism to be the doctrine of the Gospel, regards the formation of a bond of union among its professors in this country, as important to the interests of pure Christianity' (RIA/DUC/IUCS/1). It also refers to the establishment of four district societies in Counties Down and Cork, and its sympathies with Unitarian communities in other parts of the world. An entry in the same minute book, dated 17 April 1837, notes expressions of sympathy with Unitarian Christians of New England on the subject of slavery and commending 'the efforts made by them to obtain the blessings of freedom for the Negro population of the United States'. Interestingly, towards the rear of one of the volumes, a cash book, there is a list of the names of Jewish children (entries dating between 1916 and 1936) with additional information such as their dates of birth, address and fathers' occupation.

Some material also relates to the Southern Association of Ireland, with one cash book recording resolutions relating to the division of the Association into two bodies, one consisting of ministers and lay representatives of Eustace Street and Strand Street in Dublin, Clonmel in Tipperary and Bandon and Prince's Street in Cork, 'from henceforth the Southern Association, United Presbytery or Synod of Munster' and the other consisting of Rev. Samuel Hans Sloane and ministers and elders of Presbyterian congregations of Waterford, Fethard, Limerick, Fermoy and Summerhill, constituting 'a separate Ecclesiastical Society or body' (1 August 1849). This split came about as a result of differing opinions of members of the body on the proceedings of a suit in the Chancery Court in Ireland by Rev. David Wilson and others against Rev. Joseph Hutton and others.

The Dublin Unitarian Church Collection is a fascinating record of the Unitarian community in Ireland and its development between the eighteenth and twentieth centuries. This body of material is an extremely valuable source for researchers in Ireland and abroad.

Second Deposit- by Martin Fagan, archivist.

The papers contained in the second deposit mainly document the workings of the various Trust Funds of the congregation and in particular the management of Trust Fund properties. Researchers are advised to pay particular attention to the minute books of the congregation contained in the aforementioned first deposit which focus more on the day-to-day running of the Church.

During the 19th century the Unitarian congregation was the beneficiary of charitable bequests of property, stocks or cash. These bequests were contained in wills which are to be found amongst this collection. Mrs Rankin, for example, drafted her will with the help of Hone and Falkiner which accounts for the many draft wills in the Rankin Trust papers. Bequests frequently came with conditions, including requirements to use the property or proceeds for specific projects such as operating a school or an alms house. These conditions occasionally hampered the work of the congregation decades later.

When the congregation received a large bequest they established a separate trust to manage it. The trust was, normally, managed by three elected members of the congregation. Upon the death of two of the trustees the congregation elected new trustees and the property was conveyed to them by the surviving trustee. This transaction resulted in the many 'Deeds of Conveyance' contained in this collection.

Hone and Falkiner managed property on behalf of the congregation. Both urban and rural property was rented to tenants who occasionally sub-let to other tenants. The rental of property required lease agreements and head-rents were payable to head-landlords. Correspondence flowed between the solicitors and tenants concerning rent due, renewals, revaluations and repairs. Of particular note are the documents charting the rental of land at Clonygowan, King's County to successive generations of the Kinsella family between the 1850s and the 1920s.

The solicitors, in turn, sought the approval of the Managing Committee of the congregation before transacting with tenants, land-valuers, builders, land-agents and other solicitors. Two of the properties belonging to the congregation were subject to Compulsory Purchase Orders (Fishguard and Rosslare Railway and Harbour Company, Great Southern and Western Railway Company, Mount Mellick Union for the erecting of Labourer's Cottages). In another case, the rent of a property was disputed by the tenant and the rent was fixed by the Land Commission Court. The collection also contains three printed brochures from the Commissioners of Incumbered Estates dating from the 1850s announcing the sale of estates in counties Sligo and Galway and providing detailed maps and accompanying lists of tenants and terms of tenure<sup>2</sup>. The collection will, therefore, be of interest to researchers interested in 19th-century property management in general as well as being a rich source of primary documentation for those interested in the localities owned by the congregation.

The congregation used the proceeds of the Singleton and Damer Trusts to operate two schools in Dublin. The rental of school premises at 41 Mespil Road generated documentation as did the 1921 decision to close the Singleton School. The closure of the school and the subsequent reuse of the Trust's income required the permission of the Commission of Charitable Bequests and a scheme for the regulation of the Trust was submitted to them.

The following table provides details of the properties associated with each trust.

Arrangement.

First Deposit.

The majority of the documents contained in this deposit were ‘Church and School records’ (predominately bound minute books and financial ledgers ) created by the forerunning congregations of the present day congregation. These congregations were located at Cook Street, Eustace Street, Strand Street and ultimately St. Stephen’s Green. A decision was made, therefore, to arrange the documents according to congregation and within each congregation to order the documents chronologically.

Five files, containing loose drafts of sermons and lectures, were included in the first deposit. As this material did not fit alongside the aforementioned documents it was decided to place it under a separate heading entitled ‘Sermons’. The files are bulky and contain over 650 individual items in total. Printed sermons and a small number of ‘Magic Lantern’ lecture-slides from the second deposit have also been placed alongside this material.

The first deposit also contained eight documents originating from the ‘Widow’s Fund of the Southern Association of Ireland’ and the ‘Irish Unitarian Christian Society’. These documents have been arranged separately under the heading ‘Irish Religious Bodies’ and are to be found at the end of the ‘Catalogue to the First Deposit’.

Second Deposit.

It was decided to follow the overall order of the documents, as imposed by Hone and Falkiner, with every effort being made to retain their original order. The arrangement of the second deposit is, therefore, mainly based upon the six main Trust Funds, namely; The Rankin Trust, The Singleton Trust, The Cook Street Property/Trust, The Lowton Trust, The Damer Trust, The Huxley Trust (later to become the Margaret Huxley Public Utility Society). Documents within each Trust Fund have been arranged chronologically. Transactions involving the Strand Street and St Stephen’s Green Property were also handled by Hone and Falkiner and documents relating to these properties can be found under these headings. A small number of sundry property documents, which do not appear to relate to any of the main trusts, were bundled together by the solicitors – these documents remain together under the title ‘Sundry Properties’.

While the majority of documents fell under the aforementioned headings, there were some documents that were clearly unrelated to the Trust Funds. These documents resemble material contained in the first deposit, consisting of general administration documents and a small number of sermons and pamphlets. The general administration documents have been catalogued together under the title ‘General Administration of Stephen’s Green congregation.’ A decision was made to place copies of ‘The Irish Truth Seeker’ and the monthly Unitarian Church bulletin with the Royal Irish Academy’s Periodicals Collection. As mentioned earlier printed sermons and a small number of ‘Magic Lantern’ lecture-slides were placed with corresponding sermons in the first deposit. (Please consult the final page of this catalogue for details of the transferred material including new locations and shelf marks)

Accessibility.

Some documents in the Dublin Unitarian Church Collection contain sensitive information about persons and families, whose right to privacy must be protected. In order to ensure this, closure periods have been applied to some of the more recent.

The archives will be made available without restriction after one hundred years has elapsed following the final entry in the particular volume or file. Material that contains personal data is subject to a one hundred-year closure period, and more routine material (financial ledgers etc.) that contains less sensitive information has a fifty-year closure period.

Entries affected by closure periods are identified in this volume and contain the following note: Closed to Public. Please consult DUC access policy form.

Researchers should refer to the access policy contained in the appendices at the rear of this volume.

Applications will be judged on an individual basis.

An application form for access to these documents can be obtained from library staff (copy of which is located at rear of this volume).

RIA/DUC/2/LOW/18 Item	23 December 1887	Valuation and reports on land at Clonygowan prepared by William Evans and Addison Hone for the Trustees of the Lowton Fund. Includes holograph letter from Addison Hone to Mr Jeremy.	Evans provides a valuation based upon his inspection of the land accompanied by Mr Kinsella and Rev D D Jeremy. He believes that Kinsella has no claim to compensation for drainage works and that the cottages on the land have no rental value. Hone suggests that if Kinsella were to request a small reduction in his rent that this could be agreed to without recourse to the Land Courts. However if the reduction sought was larger then it would be best to have the rent fixed by the Land Commission.	4 items

RIA/DUC/2/ADM/19 Item	1908	Copy of queries and opinion of James Andrews, counsel concerning the various Stephen's Green Church Funds.	Includes the following six queries: How should the surplus income be dealt with? Which funds can be applied to general expenses? How should the accounts be presented in future? How can bursaries for aged and deserving women be established? How should the Alms House and Poor funds be dealt with? Are the present trustees running personal risks with regard to personal liability and if so how can this be avoided? Andrews provides detailed answers mentioning that income from each trust 'is applicable solely to the objects of such Trusts, and cannot be legally utilized for the general expenses or purposes of the congregation.' He also warns that the present system of fusing the accounts of the separate Trust Funds technically exposes the trustees to 'serious personal liability.'	2 items
RIA/DUC/2/ADM/20 Item	13 April 1908	Typewritten copy of letter from Hone & Falkiner, solicitors to Miss H. M. Hutton, 8 Fitzwilliam Street regarding the accounts of Stephen's Green Church	Having considered the accounts the solicitors ask that Hutton provide a breakdown of figures in the accounts noting that the trust funds of the Church have strict terms which necessitate further detail. They also suggest that the counsel's opinion and direction be sought as to the present position of the various funds and income.	3p.
RIA/DUC/2/ADM/21 Item	20 January 1909	Report of Hone and Falkiner on the Stephen's Green Church Funds prepared for the Managing Committee. Includes two drafts.	Hone and Falkiner recommend that the Trustees adopt a new form of accounts which divides the surplus incomes arising from each trust fund. They suggest how each surplus can be legally used for the benefit of the Church without breaking the stipulations associated with each trust. They warn, for example, that the surplus of the Alms House (Rebuilding) Fund can only be used for the erection of an Alms House despite the fact that such institutions 'are now out of date and undesirable'. Changing the terms of this trust would, however, require the sanction of the Court of Chancery and 'there is some danger in bringing any of the Church property formerly held in connection with Eustace Street congregation before the Courts' lest the title of Stephen's Green congregation be questioned.	3 items
